

TRADE OUTLET IN AUSTRALIA

American Manufacturer Talks of Conditions in the Oceanic Continent.

GOOD CHANCE FOR THE YANKEES THERE

They Must Adapt Themselves to Existing Conditions and Meet the Demands of Trade in That Part of the World.

Among the guests at the Millard on Sunday was W. A. Dwyer of the Michigan State works, Detroit, returning home from an extensive reconnoiter of the Pacific islands and Australia, in the interests of several large manufacturing establishments and eastern trade journals. The object of Mr. Dwyer's trip was to gather data of use to manufacturers who are planning to seek trade outlets in Australia and the island colonies of the Pacific. His itinerary included Honolulu; Apia, Samoa; Auckland, New Zealand; Sydney, Melbourne, Australia; and Noumea, New Caledonia. Mr. Dwyer has gathered a great deal of valuable information and his observations are interesting. Among other things he said:

"Whether or not American merchants will succeed in building up trade in this practically new country depends largely upon the outcome of the federation movement which is now engrossing the time and politics of the Australians."

"At present trade with outside nations is hampered by an intercolonial tariff, highly protective, which serves to keep out goods of foreign manufacture, and from a commercial point of view makes each of the six colonies practically a separate state. If the federation movement goes through, and there is every probability that it will, this tariff will no longer exist and American goods that a tariff for revenue only, 12 or 15 percent ad valorem, will be levied. In this case trade with Australia will be of great importance for the United States."

There is one thing, though, American manufacturers will have to learn and that is they can't sell these people the same kind of goods that are sold in the states. It is a mistake to make up to the time. Take for instance, gloves. Several concerns have sent men down there at big expense and have been disappointed because they failed to sell their goods. The reason is that the people do not use gloves here. They want things that are made of rough country goods. They buy the English make now and if our manufacturers want to sell their goods they must make a special kind. This holds true in every line and it is a fact that American merchants have failed to note in considering the expansion project."

"Then another thing, if American trade is going to be expanded the government will have to subsidize a merchant marine, as freight rates are going to be among the chief obstacles to commercial extension. We will have to take off the duty on wool, too. If we are going to trade with Australia the merchants of that country will not purchase our goods if we do not buy them in return. Until very recently the United States has paid little attention to foreign trade and we have a good deal to learn regarding the export business."

"In Sydney I saw a number of things that interested me, several being infringed on our own ideas. For instance, in the fire departments 'quick hitches' are just coming into vogue. They are a little slow to get to American idea, but it is reaching them finally. American harness is used exclusively in the departments. In this connection, the city of Sydney has a municipal law that we would do well to copy. The insurance companies pay one-third of the cost of the fire departments. The balance is divided between the taxpayers and the city."

Representatives of the Philadelphia Commercial Exposition, which will open in October, are hustling about the various islands of the Pacific collecting exhibits and Colonel Bell, the American consul, who will represent Australia at the exposition, will be in Omaha on his way to Philadelphia some time next month."

Curious Customs.

In China it is the custom for guests at dinners to run around between the courses. This is supposed to keep the dinner digestion in good condition, but the nervous hustling American needs something else, and there is nothing better than Foxe's Stomach Bitters. If a man or woman is suffering with constipation, indigestion or any stomach trouble it's their fault if they don't get well. Stomach Bitters will cure them. See that a private Revenue Stamp covers the neck of the bottle.

A GIRL'S REALISTIC DREAM

Servant Sees a Man in Her Sleep and Emits a Series of Wild Shrieks.

A girl's realistic dream caused several of the police a wild ride Sunday at midnight. At that hour the family of H. R. Pinkerton, Twenty-fourth and Chicago streets, were awakened by a shriek from the servant's room on the second floor. Mr. Pinkerton listened and heard his name called. Then he rushed to the foot of the stairs he asked Bessie Ament, the maid, why she screamed. The reply was: "There is a man up here in the closet."

Being unprepared to hunt burglars in the dark, Mr. Pinkerton told the girl to come downstairs and she obeyed. The young woman explained that she had been awakened by strange noises, and looking across the hall into the opposite room, had seen a man crouching before the window. She even heard his footsteps as he started downstairs. Then she screamed. A few seconds of quiet followed. She saw the man reappear before the window and heard the closet door close. Then she called Mr. Pinkerton's name.

The police were sent for and the patrol wagon burned the road in haste to reach the house before the burglar could escape. Arrived, the police opened the closet door and found the place was empty and a search of the premises revealed no trace of a burglar. The girl was questioned. On thinking over events of the night she concluded the man was seen in a realistic dream.

Dr. Witt's Little Early Risers benefit permanently. They give gentle assistance to nature, causing no pain or weakness, permanently curing constipation and liver ailments.

Suspected Gamblers Arrested.

A cigar store at 1607 North Twenty-fourth street was raided Sunday night by Sergeant Wisenberg and Behout, who took into custody seven men suspected of gambling. In the rear of the store is a card room, where the suspects were playing a game of cards. The police arrested all the men and they were taken to the police station.

Charged with Assault.

May Ashburn complained to the police that while she was staying at the home of Ernest Howell he made an attempt to assault her. Howell was arrested and spent Sunday in jail. His wife attempted to secure his release, but the police held him pending an investigation. It is believed that the complaint will not be pushed as Howell claims he has some strong testimony against the woman.

Another Jail Delivery.

William Fitzgerald and H. S. Crockett escaped from the city jail early Sunday morning and are still at large. A hole about sixteen inches square was dug through the east brick wall of the jail. There was formerly a door at this point in the wall but in order to reduce the number of exits the door was taken down and the aperture bricked up. The mortar used in this work must have been very poor, for with a small piece of iron about an inch wide and ten inches long the brick were removed, apparently without any difficulty. Water from the sink near by was thrown on the mortar, softening it so that the work of tearing down the wall was greatly lightened. Fitzgerald was being held for assault and battery while Crockett was merely detained on suspicion. Both had spent about five days in jail and no doubt became tired of their quarters. Neither had been locked in cells, as the charges against them were not of sufficient importance. This portion of the wall will now be taken down and the brick relaid in cement in order to prevent similar occurrences in the future.

Change of Grade Wanted.

Contrary to what has been com-

MILITARY SOCIAL FUNCTION

General Ludlow Gives a Reception and Ball at Havana.

IT WAS IN HONOR OF INDEPENDENCE DAY

Many Applications from the American Gratitude from the Province of Santiago-Outlaws Scattered in Puerto Principe.

HAVANA, July 9.—The reception and ball given last evening by General Ludlow, the military commander, outside the city, in honor of Independence day, was a most successful function in Havana in recent years. Innumerable red, white and blue electric flags, thousands of roses, hundreds of flags and no end of banners, bayonets and rifles artistically grouped made the scene within the palace memorable and gay.

More than a thousand guests attended. Music was furnished by two military bands. All the foreign consuls were in evidence, most of them wearing glittering orders and many of the women were handsome jewels.

General Ludlow gave the function in honor of Independence day and the representative Cubans and Spaniards of Havana were present.

Apply for the Gratuity.

American officials here are surprised at the large number of Cubans now appearing in the province of Santiago for a share of the gratuity. The Cuban officers had assumed there were not 100 men in the province who would accept money from the United States having to change it on telegrams which purported to come from Santiago. Even when it became known that these dispatches were inspired by Cuban malcontents here and connected in the Inglaterra cafe, it was still felt that these opponents of a dissolution of the Cuban navy might succeed in preventing a large number from applying to the American paymasters. Those who knew the facts believed that the Santiago insurgents were much underestimated on the pay rolls, especially as the Cuban generals had always claimed that more than 60 per cent of the army was in Santiago province. It turned out that the jealousy that existed in war times between the eastern and western troops still exists and that those in Santiago province are more likely to reject than accept advice from Havana.

At Sancti Spiritus, out of 175 mustered on payment has been reduced to 175. Sixty weapons have been delivered to the mayor of the city. Two hundred and eighty-four applications have been refused. The supplementary lists will be ready in about ten days.

Guards Scatter Outlaws.

A dispatch from Puerto Principe says the rural guards there were notified of the presence of a band of forty armed men near the city and pursued them to Carvajal plantation, where the outlaws gave fight from behind a stone wall. After ten minutes of hot firing the band made a dash for the road and escaped, losing one man, Luis Cruz, a former resident of Nuevitas and always a worthless character. The rural guards had two men wounded. They captured fifteen horses, the outlaws had been hiding. The band recently stole eight rifles, a number of revolvers and machetes and a quantity of cartridges, with which it was evidently intended to arm additional men.

La Correspondencia de Cienfuegos says General Wilson has ordered police headquarters not to give reports to newspaper correspondents, and especial care has been enjoined regarding the suburban work of the rural guards. Marina asserts that a former was robbed by a band claiming to be of the new junta, organized, as they claim, to oust the Americans.

A prominent Spaniard said this evening that most of the letters received by local business houses show a decided hesitation to extend operations in Cuba until matters are more tranquil.

General Ludlow is planning to extend the drains running to the sea near the leper hospital further down the harbor.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the temperature in Havana was 85 degrees.

South Omaha News.

Tuesday evening is the date set for a mass meeting of citizens at the council chamber for the purpose of discussing the High school bond proposition. Every one interested is urged to attend in order that a full expression may be obtained. In case the meeting favors the voting of bonds and a resolution to this effect is passed, it is more than likely that the Board of Education will hold the question of submitting to the voters the advisability of submitting the question to a vote of the people. As the expense of a special election will amount to about $600, the members of the board will most likely want some assurance that the bonds will carry before agreeing to expend this amount of money. It is thought that a well attended meeting will be about the best way to obtain the sentiment of the people in this regard.

Already the Board of Education has appropriated $20,000 of the coming fiscal year's revenue for the purpose of erecting a ward school building and making repairs. This new building is to be located on the corner of 24th and V streets, and will aid materially in relieving the crowded condition of other schools in the vicinity. As for repairs, nearly all the buildings need to have a little work done on them. The Brown Park school will have to have the heating and ventilating apparatus thoroughly overhauled. A mechanic is now working on plans for the alterations to be made at this building and it is thought that when these plans are carried out there will be no more trouble about heating and ventilating. The Smead school is in use at this school, but for some reason has not given satisfaction for two or three years. Considerable money will have to be spent in making the alterations, but just what system will be used has not been decided upon.

In speaking about the proposed mass meeting yesterday an ex-member of the Board of Education said that the thought of erecting more ward schools at this time would give better results than the spending of $100,000 in building a High school. He argued that by erecting several ward schools the pressure at the present High school would be withdrawn and that there would then be plenty of room for the High school pupils. Some provision will have to be made for the large number of school children, but it remains with the people to decide whether money is voted to build ward schools or a High school. Some people are of the opinion that bonds for ward schools would carry while there is considerable doubt about the High school proposition.

Another Jail Delivery.

William Fitzgerald and H. S. Crockett escaped from the city jail early Sunday morning and are still at large. A hole about sixteen inches square was dug through the east brick wall of the jail. There was formerly a door at this point in the wall but in order to reduce the number of exits the door was taken down and the aperture bricked up. The mortar used in this work must have been very poor, for with a small piece of iron about an inch wide and ten inches long the brick were removed, apparently without any difficulty. Water from the sink near by was thrown on the mortar, softening it so that the work of tearing down the wall was greatly lightened. Fitzgerald was being held for assault and battery while Crockett was merely detained on suspicion. Both had spent about five days in jail and no doubt became tired of their quarters. Neither had been locked in cells, as the charges against them were not of sufficient importance. This portion of the wall will now be taken down and the brick relaid in cement in order to prevent similar occurrences in the future.

Change of Grade Wanted.

Contrary to what has been committed to grade Twenty-third street from O to R yet, but expects to work before long. In connection with this work Councilman Pittle of the Second ward said yesterday that the grade established was not satisfactory to a large number of people and he thought that an effort would be made to change it. Mr. Pittle asserts that the cut between O and Q streets is not deep enough and he would like to see the grade changed before work is commenced. The dirt to be taken from Twenty-third street will be used in filling Twenty-second street south of O.

Reorganization Talk.

The scheme to reorganize the city council is still being talked of, but no great headway seems to be made. Some days it looks as if Johnson has the deal about fixed and then again a hitch is encountered and the whole thing is abandoned. Johnson is anxious to be chosen president of the council, so that in case Mayor Ensor absents himself from the city he would be acting mayor. It is whispered that the brothers and sisters keepers are supporting the proposed reorganization in order that the Sunday drought may be broken.

Male City Gossip.

Mrs. Effie Lake of Arcadia is visiting her father, D. S. Parkhurst.

The effects of Ralph Kells of the First Nebraska have arrived home.

The city was unusually quiet Saturday night, not an arrest being reported.

Philip McEvoy leaves for Kansas City today to attend a convention of retail clerks.

Mrs. E. R. Hayward, mother of Mrs. J. B. Hayward, has gone to Europe to spend the summer.

The funeral of Francis, the young daughter of Hugh Kennedy, was held yesterday afternoon.

HIS LIFE AN INSPIRATION

(Continued from First Page.)

JUDGE FAWCETT'S EULOGY.

In speaking of the patriotism of Bishop Newman Judge Jacob Fawcett said that Webster's definition of the word but faintly describes that class of patriots to which Newman belonged. He was no uncertain, timorous patriot. He never measured this nation by the standard of any other nation. Wherever he journeyed, wherever he met, peace or peaceable rebellion or civil war, he knew that he was standing face to face with an American.

Judge Fawcett referred to the stirring incidents that accompanied Bishop Newman's work in New Orleans during the closing days of the civil war to show his sterling courage and unswerving patriotism. He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

BUT HIS LIFE AN INSPIRATION

(Continued from First Page.)

JUDGE FAWCETT'S EULOGY.

In speaking of the patriotism of Bishop Newman Judge Jacob Fawcett said that Webster's definition of the word but faintly describes that class of patriots to which Newman belonged. He was no uncertain, timorous patriot. He never measured this nation by the standard of any other nation. Wherever he journeyed, wherever he met, peace or peaceable rebellion or civil war, he knew that he was standing face to face with an American.

Judge Fawcett referred to the stirring incidents that accompanied Bishop Newman's work in New Orleans during the closing days of the civil war to show his sterling courage and unswerving patriotism. He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.

He always contended that no office was high enough to induce him to sacrifice one atom of his citizenship. He was an aristocrat in that he believed that every American is a king and that every American woman is a queen. This nation will never forget his courage and his unswerving patriotism.